

IS YOUR HVAC SYSTEM READY FOR THE COOLER MONTHS?

Stay ahead of the season and earn money back with SEI REMC's HVAC TUNE-UP REBATE

As the days become shorter and temperatures begin to drop, it is important to make sure your home is prepared for seasonal changes. One of the most effective ways to get ready for cooler weather is to schedule a professional HVAC tune-up. Your system works throughout the year to keep your home comfortable, and a fall checkup ensures it continues to perform efficiently when you need it most.

A seasonal HVAC tune-up typically includes inspecting and cleaning key components, checking for wear, adjusting settings for efficiency and confirming that the system is operating safely. This routine maintenance helps reduce energy usage, improves indoor comfort and minimizes the chance of costly repairs later in the season. Preparing your system now can also extend its lifespan and support long-term savings on heating costs.

To assist members with these preventative steps, Southeastern Indiana REMC offers a Residential HVAC Tune-Up rebate. Members who schedule a professional tune-up can receive up to $50 back, helping to offset the cost of maintenance while supporting energy efficiency at home.

Whether your system is new or has been in use for several years, regular maintenance is a smart investment. Many homeowners do not realize the importance of tune-ups until something goes wrong. Taking action before colder weather arrives helps ensure your household remains warm, safe and comfortable throughout the fall and winter.
